Summer Internships – Think Tank

MacroPolo is the Paulson Institute's think tank. Based in Chicago, our team of experts and creators provides incisive analysis, creative research products, and insightful multimedia and digital content. Our deliberately focused approach centers on three core areas: political economy, technology, and energy. We focus on both China and cross-cutting themes and global dynamics.

We are currently accepting applications for Summer Internships who will engage in substantive work and be part of the MacroPolo team. The Summers Interns will receive compensation for the duration of their work.

During the 12 weeks—from June 13 to September 2, 2022—you will be working in our Chicago headquarters. You will spend the whole summer working directly with MacroPolo analysts under a functional area (economics, politics, energy, technology), contribute to their projects, and also get training and mentorship throughout the summer from these domain experts and MacroPolo leadership.

And as a bonus, you will get to enjoy gorgeous summer in Chicago, second city to none.

Qualifications

We seek highly qualified undergraduate and graduate students eligible to work in the United States (recent graduates may be considered on a case-by-case basis).

You should have a good sense of MacroPolo's work and an idea of which functional area you would like to focus on. Data software skills, strong writing, and advanced proficiency in Mandarin Chinese are highly preferred but not essential.

How to Apply

To apply, please send a one-page resumé, a one-page cover letter, and a short (no more than 3 pages) writing sample in one PDF document with "Summer Internship Application + Your Name" in email subject to both Annie Cantara (acantara@paulsoninstitute.org) and Ruihan Huang (rhuang@paulsoninstitute.org) no later than 11:59pm CT, Friday, March 25, 2022. Incomplete and late application materials will not be considered. No phone calls please.
